Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

Congressman Joseph W. Martin Jr., of Massachusetts finds on investigation that the Federal government spends almost $100,000,000 annually in spreading favorable publicity concerning the various bureaux, commissions,, departments, defense boards, army and navy activities, in fact, about practically every thing the government does, plans, or what heads of government agencies say. That is a good deal of money poured into press releases, radio time, and moving pictures. It constitutes a powerful lever.

Thus far there has been no compulsion exercised. The press, the broadcasting stations, the film makers and other agencies for the spread of government "news," don't have to use any of it. As a matter of fact the whole amount is wasted because the Associated Press, and the United Press and other newsgathering ageicies, unbiased and nonpartisan, already keep the people informed of all the news, not suppressed, of the government. The deluge of printed and mimeographed matter received in editorial rooms throughout the country is surplusage, extravagant, wasteful and useless.

But the truth is that each government agency, commission, or department tries to obtain a favorable press, wholly favorable, regardless of its weaknesses, futility, extravagance or other fault. The system, the huge expenditures, the psychology behind it, are all wrong. The people who hire and pay these servants want to know the whole truth about them, not part of the truth and not special pleading.

In the Nugget office, for instance, enough self-laudatory federal bureau material arrives each week to print two 8-page papers without advertising. Practically all of it is intended to advertise the beneficent activities of the government. Sometimes, so avid is the press agent for free publicity for his bureau, that his covering letter carries the implication that if the editor does not use it, he lacks patriotism.

So far as the press is concerned, as it digs itself out from under this $100,000,000 deluge, the answer has been better and stouter waste baskets. We believe every editor would resent an offer from any of these government bureaux to buy advertising space in order to gain his good graces to secure the free publication of the vast wordage which $100,000,000 looses. We are confident that the press of the country will spurn anything that looks like a subsidy. Farmers welcome the subsidy and the shackles that go with it. Pensioners of various kinds heil the governments' largess and vote for the benefactors in power. Labor racketeers in the name of unionism, enabled by new laws to feast like wood ticks on the earnings of both capital and labor, with no let or hindrance from the courts, vociferously applaud the administration that sustains them. But thus far, no attempt has been made to buy a favorable press. By and large, the nations editors have looked to results, to facts as manifested in the results of reforms that bring the scum to the top. It rises like faecal matter to the surface of a cesspool.

If we had to choose one word to characterize the policy which has guided this nation over the past eight years, it would be "appeasement." Since 1937 the Japanese have been appeased, until now a very critical juncture in world affairs, appeasement apparently ends. We say "apparently" because we are not sure yet that words mean action. For eight years the communists of the United States have been appeased to such an extent that they have taken over a large number of labor unions.

County Tax Rate Same As 1940-41

SUPERVISORS TENTATIVELY ADOPT BUDGET FOR NEW YEAR

Nevada County's tax rate for the 1941-42 fiscal year tentatively has been set for $1.60 per $100 valuation by the board of supervisors. That does not include the school taxes.

The county rate is the same as last year and includes the following fund levies:

General, $1.16; salary, 32 cents; junior college, 10 cents, and veterans buildings, 2 cents.

The junior college rate increased four cents. The supervisors and County Auditor R. N. McCormack, to prevent an increase in the rate, reduced the general fund tax four cents and the veterans building tax two cents. The salary fund tax increased by two cents over the previous fiscal year.

The supervisors will meet on August 20th and if no protests are lodged against the budget as tentatively drawn up, a resolution will be passed making it effective for the 1941-42 fiscal year.

Under the budget as tentatively approved by the board, the following amounts were allowed for the carrying on of the various branches of county government.

Board of supervisors, $11,000; clerk and auditor, $10,600; treasurer and tax collector, $7,420; assessor, $8,275; district attorney, $8,050; coroner, $1,750; surveyor, $475; planning commission, $400; superior court, $2,600; justice courts, $4,262; grand jury, $400; court reporter, $3,500; sheriff, $12,750; constables, $2,140; recorder, $6,780; sealer of weights and measures, $285; agricultural commissioner, $4,610; predatory animal control, $1,680; tubercular care, $14,000; highways and bridges, $114,300; recreation, $6,605; charities and corrections, $366,051 and miscellaneous $4,100.

The deceased leaves his wife, Mrs. Era G. Peckwith of Downieville and two sisters Mrs. George Hullett of Nevada City and Mrs. F V. Coplantz of Grass Valley.

YOUTH OUTDISTANCES POLICE CAR BUT LATER APPREHENDED

William Joseph Lang, 18, charged with reckless driving by the local police following his capture in Grass Valley after he had evadad arrest by outdistancing the police car here, was given a 30 day suspended jail sentence by City Judge Miles Coughlin.

The jail sentence was suspended on condition Lang go to work for his parents, who are to acquire the former Anderson Service Station here.

Lang, driving the car of Al Abrams of Grass Valley, speeded through Nevada City streets and the local police car, Lynn Davies driving, set out in pursuit. Lang succeeded in evading capture but the police picked up his trail on the lower Grass Valley Road.

Lang, according to reports, nearly wrecked the car he was driving and the police car on the rough, chuck-hole road. He managed to get away but a radio call to the Grass Valley police was put in by the local officers and Lang was apprehended in Grass Valley and returned to the jail here.

Officers Davies and Al Sommers recognized the license plate on the car as being from this county. That was the only thing that saved Lang from being fired upon. Had the officers not seen the license in all probability they would have fired upon the car believing it had been stolen.

"Old Timers" Honored At Chamber Meet

Important business was discussed at the "Old Timers Night" meeting of the local chamber of commerce at the National Hotel here Monday night.

There were not many "Old Timers" present at the gathering but the affair was nevertheless enthusiastic. Speakers included Superior Judge George L. Jones, City Clerk George Calanan and R. L. Bigelow, retired supervisor of the Tahoe National Forest.

Justice of the Peace George Gildersleeve was another "Old Timer" present but President Guerdon Ellis did not ask him for a speech, stating the justice did not deserve the classification of "Old Timer" despite his white hair. Justice Gildersleeve was complimented for his active support of the local booster organization.

Plans were discussed at the meeting for the improvement of the Lava Cap road. It was reported the improving of the Nevada City Airport will not be done until next spring.

The organization appointed Emmett Gallagher chairman of the membership committee. A drive for new members will start soon.

Watt Will Case Given To Jury of Ten Men and Two Women Here This Morn

The Mrs. Alison Watt $30,000 will contest case was given to a jury of ten men and two women this morning after instructions by Superior Judge Warren Steel.

The jury did not reach a verdict by noon and the jurors were taken to lunch at the National Hotel. At 1:45 the jury requested Judge Steel for further instructions. The instructions were given and deliberations resumed.

The will contest case has aroused more interest in this county than any civil action in recent years. Mrs. Watt, a past grand president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and one of the most widely known women of the county, left the bulk of her $30,000 estate to Daniel C. Stewart, a close friend. Stewart likewise is prominently known. Until his retirement on July 1st, he was manager of the Nevada City and Grass Valley Pacific Gas and Electric Company offices.

The contest of the will was filed by Robert Finnie, Sr., of Sacramento, a brother of the deceased. Finnie was not mentioned in the will.

The claim of the brother was that Mrs. Watt was incompetent and did not know what she was doing when she made out her will.

The trial was featured by a parade of witnesses by both the plaintiff and the defense, attempting to prove Mrs. Watt was either incompetent or sane.

The trial opened before Judge Steel on July 21st. A jury was selected on the first day and the taking of testimony began on the 22nd.

All the testimony was completed by the end of the court proceedings on Tuesday and yesterday the arguments of counsel were presented.

Judge Steel's instructions to the jury this morning were brief.

Plaintiff Finnie is represented by Attorneys James Snell, Vernon Stoll and John L. LaRue.

The defendants, who include, beside Daniel Stewart, Laurel Parlor, Native Daughters of this city, various other organizations and several individual friends, were represented by Orrin Lowell, Frank Finnegan and Dwight Steele.

The Bethany Church of Nevada City, affiliated with the Assembly of God, has acquired the church in Glenbrook formerly occupied by the Full Gospel faith.

Rev. Robert Carrington said the services in the new location will be held for the first time on August 10th.

Final services in the present location of the church on Spring Street in this city will be held Sunday, Rev. Carrington said.

The local pastor said the move to larger quarters was necessary because the present location is too small to accommodate the congregation.

Rev. and Mrs. Carrington will make their home at the rear of the new church.

COMMUNITY SERVICE IS ROTARY TOPIC

Reports of the Rotary assembly held in Alameda this last week end were made by President Helm Kjorlie and Secretary Fred Garrison at the meeting of the Nevada City Rotary at luncheon today in the National Hotel.

President Kjorlie brought back several suggestions for the improvement of Rotary's community service function. He stated that he believed the club should get actively behind the proposal to increase public interest in Pioneers Park. With a few improvements the park, he believed, would be used much more than it is. He also contended that the club should back public interest in preserving fire house No. 1, and should further, in so far as possible, the movement to turn fire house No. 2 into a permanent museum for this region.

The president discussed methods of increasing the club's percentage attendance, increasing the interest of the meetings, and reported the systems used in other clubs to accomplish these purposes.

Secretary Fred Garrison gave an account of the recreational features of the assembly. High spot on that program was the tour of the Alameda Naval base, personally conducted by one of the naval officers. Permission for this tour had to come from Washington.

LOCAL ELKS SOFTBALL TEAM HEADED FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

The Nevada City Elks, an entry in the Nevada County soft ball tournament in Grass Valley, seems to be the surprise team of the year. The Elks so far this year have won six games with only one defeat.

With the completion of the first half of the season, the Elks had four players in the big ten. These players were Hoskins with a batting average of .716, Murray .552, Tamblyn .464, and Childers, .438. As the second half progresses the Elks are still in first place, and from all indications they will remain in that position. If the Elks win the National League championship, they will play the champs of the American league in a three game play off, in Grass Valley.

The team has been strengthened in the outfield by Bill Cornelius a new comer from San Francisco. The other fielders are Tamblyn, Murray, Keene, Mitchell, Sommerfield, and Willie Lewis. The infield consists of Childers 3rd, W. Mullis ss, B. Mullis 2nd, Stevens 1st, Fouyer c, and Leroy Hoskins pitch.

The local fans are asked to turn out to support this team who are heading for top honors in the Nevada County soft ball league. The Elks play the Grass Valley Laundry in Grass Valley tomorrow night.

3-THOUSAND AIRCRAFT WORKERS WILL BE NEEDED AT AIR DEPOT

Opportunities for employment at the Sacramento Air Depot will continue throughout this year for those qualified either by experience or training according to an announcement made today by Edward E. Steele, Manager of the Grass Valley office of the California Department of Employment.

Steele said that 3,000 aircraft mechanics of various grades will be needed at the depot by January 1, 1942. He said that only a very few of the men needed can be found with the experience required and must be trained.

Training courses in two of the crafts required, Aircraft Electrician and Aircraft Engine Mechanic, are being conducted at the Placer Union High School under supervision of instructors from the Air Depot.

Qualified applicants for this training between the ages of 18 and 40 may be referred for enrollment in these classes, by the Department of Employment. Applications may be made immediately at the department office, 111 South Auburn Street, Grass Valley.

The probable permancy of Army Air Depot jobs as compared with other defense industries which may terminate with the end of the defense emergency was pointed out. Steele says that it is now universally recognized that the army will have to maintain large numbers of aircraft even in peace time and that these aircraft will require periodic overhaul, assuring the continued maintenance of these Army Air Depots.

CASUALTIES OF DEFENSE

The casualties of war are never confined to the men wounded and slain in battle. Twice as many American soldiers died of disease, during World War No. 1, as were killed in action. And that war of two decades ago took a toll in economic casualties even more disastrous to the nation than its tragic rolls of men maimed and killed on the battlefields. Millions of Americans walked the streets out of work for years on end as a result of the economic dislocations of that war; hundreds of thousands of businessmen, farmers and professional men went to the wall; millions of children went hungry—all casualties of that war!

Many of the economic consequences of war are inescapable. and knowing that. certainly we should take every precaution to cushion the shock of this new World War and to avert as much of the damage to our economic system as possible. Already the first casualties of the defense program are starting to show up. according to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., special assistant to the Chief of the Defense Contract Service. "Priority orders have had drastic effects not upon a few concerns". reports Mr. Nehemkis. "but upon entire industries. Already not less than ten entire industries, whose supplies have been either drastically curtailed or completely shut off, must either close down or enter a new line of production. It is one of the profound ironies of our defense effort that its total effect may be to obliterate smaller enterprises from the American business scene."

American business—and American leaders in government—have both failed thus far, Mr. Nehemkis warns, to accept the challenge of organizing the small workshops of the nation into effective sub-contracting groups. Shall we, too, (he asks) be compelled to follow the British experience and concentrate production in a reduced number of factories working full time? We hope not; we can't afford to kill "little business" in America. for that would kill the America we know and cherish. There is a probability that provision will be made in future defense contracts for compulsory sub-contracting on the part of major contractors. It is to be hoped that such provision is made. This, at least, is one of the threatened casualties of this war which can and must be prevented. —Contributed.

AMERICANS UNITED

Wendell Willkie came to California last week on a campaign tour, not for himself, not for votes, but in the cause of national unity—pleading for support of the man who defeated him at last year's presidential election. There is bound to be controversy over some of the things which Mr. Willkie said during his stay here, for there is still honest difference of opinion and disagreement over the course this country should follow in the present emergency. But irrespective of that, there was much of the stuff that has made America great in the setting of these Willkie meetings.

On the same platform, gathered in the same cause, there were captains of industry and heads of labor. There, on the same rostrum, were William B. Malone, Democratic State Chairman, and William M. Knowland, Republican National Commiteeman. Side by side sat Governor Olson and Speaker of the Assembly Gordon Garland. Everywhere one looked there were men of opposing political and economic philosophies and men of differing religious beliefs. And then, to top it all off, there was Wendell Willkie speaking for President Roosevelt!

The spectacle itself was a thrilling example of the thing Mr. Willkie came to talk about—national unity. Bartley C. Crum, San Francisco attorney and founder of Americans United, under whose auspices the tour was arranged, said after Mr. Willkie had left: "There is no longer any question in my mind as to whether America is united; we still have the same spirit which created the Town Hall meeting. We may argue in meeting, but at least we attend; we all know at any rate that we have something worth arguing about." And that, in our opinion, is the hallmark of democracy—Contributed.

YOUTH MUST BUILD

When bombers and tanks and blitzkrieg troops have finished tearing the world apart, American youth must take the lead in putting it back together again—and youth must be trained for that vital job of reconstruction; trained to work hard and glory in it.

This was the challenge laid before the closing session of Stanford University's annual education conference by Dr. William G. Carr, assistant secretary of the National Education Association a,nd Dr. Carr made it plain that American educators must furnish the blueprint for the job.

If this country is to be equal to the task before it, Dr. Carr declared, "We as educators must teach the people of America—children, youths and adults —everything possible about the job of reconstruction before us. Then he added, significantly: "We must teach them that work is honorable; we must teach them pride in working with their hands, as well as their minds. Noxious attitudes toward certain types of manual labor should be weeded out of the minds of adults, and they must never be planted again the minds of the rising generation."

That kind of talk from one or the nation's leading educotars restores our faith in our American educational system. At times, our schools have been criticized for being strong on theory and short on practice; for training the mind, but neglecting the hands. Whether that criticism has been just or unjust, we can all agree at least that all of us—youths and adults alike—have a job of work to do during the years ahead which will require strong backs, hard labor and sweat, as well as intelligence and courage. And it is good to know that our schools are preparing youth for that kind of training —Contributed

KEEP HIM THAT WAY!

PHILOSOPHY OF HITLER AFFECTS U. S. MORAL CODE

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

Hitler's conscienceless perfidy in his dealings with other nations has been the subject of almost as much comment during recent weeks as the blitzkrieg campaigns of his armored legions.

Under the devastating impact of totalitarian materialism, which laughs at morality and honor, covenants between nations and treaties of friendship have less value than at any other period in world history. No longer are they merely scraps of paper; they have become a form of diplomatic ambush—a trap for the unwary!

Hitler's invasion of Russia was probably the most spectacular example of the double cross between nations in our time. Stalin's code, however, is little better than Hitler's, if past performance may be taken as a criterion, and the American public is still undecided as to which is the most unscrupulous gangster. But before Hitler turned against his Soviet ally, he had violated his non-aggression pacts with Poland, Denmark, Norway, Belgium, Holland and Yugoslavia.

As a consequence, editorial writers have poured forth millions of words in denunciation of this modern Machiavelli whose swastika has become the mark of bad faith and the emblem of treachery.

This writer has no quarrel with that apyraisal of Hitler; it is the correct appraisal. His ethics are no better than those of Al Capone—and the methods are much the same.

But because we consider Hitler unspeakable —and an international outlaw, who deserves to be stood up before a firing squad—we have need to consider our own moral code; we have desperate need to make sure that we are men of our word—that our own way of life has not been tarnished and that we will believe in such simple virtures as honor and honesty.

When a man in the business world breaks his word or cuts a few corners to make a quick profit—even though he may laugh it off as just Yankee shrewdness —that isn't so different, after all, from Hitler's act in doubling his late ally, Stalin. The business man, of course, wouldn't commit murder to win his point; in that he differs from the German dictator, but it is only a question of degree.

When a member of the legislature goes back on his pledged word, or sells out his constituents to gain some selfish advantage, that isn't so different, after all, from trearing up treaties between nations. Ethically, it's the same thing.

When a labor union signs up a wage and hour agreement with an employer for a fixed period of time —and then declares a strike, in open violation of that agreement—that isn't so different, either, from what Hitler is doing. It is a breach of good faith which undermines the very system we live by.

This writer is not a cynic where the legislature is concerned. Actually, there are many fine, able, loyal men in the state legislature, who render splendid public service at considerable personal sacrifice. But during the legislative session just ended there wer also examples of duplicity which were ashocking revelation of a weakening of moral fiber that is dangerous to this state and nation.

There is no cause for cynicism either where business is concerned. For every crooked business man, who sneaks trick paragrahs into hi contracts, or breaks his word, there are a dozen others who still pride themseves on the fact that their word is their bond.

In the case of labor unions, there have been so many violations of contracts and agreements in recent years that a large section of the public undoubtedly has grown cynical—feeling that a contract with labor isn't any better than one with Hitler. But that condition, we believe, has been brought about by crooked labor bosses, not by rank and file union men, although it is a condition which only the members of labor can correct.

As individuals, we all need to take a sharp loog at ourselves—and determine whether we have been affected, by the Hitlerian philosophy. Certainly we can't trust Hitler; on that we are agreed. But can we trust each other? The answer to that question may well determine whether we survive as a free people; it may determine the fate of our democracy.

Start For Army Early In Sept.

State selective service headquarters announced that the 21 year old California youths who registered for military service this month will start going into the army early in September. Local draft boards were given instructions for "integrating" the newly registered youths in with the former registrants so that a proper proportion of both groups would be included in coming draft calls.

Olson Vetoes Bill Ousting Williams

By T. M. BRIGHT
United Press Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, July 31.—(UP)—Statisticians adding up the legislative score today found that California will have a total of 1284 new laws as a result of the 1941 regular session of the legislature.

Although Governor Olson pocket vetoed 92 measures as his bill signing period came to an end last week the figures showed he approved an unusually high percentage of the bills.

In all the legislature passed 1422 bills. Of these, 1264 were signed, 46 were vetoed during the session, 12 became law during the session without a signature 8 vetoes were overridden and 38 vetoes were sustained.

Only a few of the last minute pocket vetoes occasioned surprise in the capitol. The killing of a bill to extend civil service to employes of the state railroad commission was unexpected, and the olive oil industry expressed surprise at the veto of a measure to prevent adulteration of olive oil.

As predicted, Olson vetoed two bills which would have had the effect of ousting Carey Williams, chief of the state division of immigration and housing, and Rose Segure, immigration inspector.

Both have been accused of radical leanings by their opponents, and Williams is the author of "Factories in the Fields," a so-called expose of large scale farming in California.

The governor also vetoed a bill which would have lowered state income taxes in higher brackets, because, he said, of his announced policy of no tax changes.

The County Supervisors Association of California was expected to report this week on its poll of county boards on the question of a special legislative session to vote money for relief programs.

The association asked the boards to express an opinion on a proposed $31,000,000 program, including $16,000,000 for old age pensions and a $15,000,000 works program.

Governor Olson urged President Roosevelt to make funds available immediately for the proposed Antioch steam stand-by plant of the Central Valley Project. He declared that construction of the plant was necessary immediately as a result of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company's abandonment of plans to construct projects at Cresta and Pulga on the Feather River.

The governor charged the P. G. & E. with arbitrary refusal to accept federal conditions granted for construction of the plants.

The Antioch unit of the Central Valley project was planned to smooth out power fluctuations from the Shasta and Friant powerhouses and make the power more suitable for public use.

An appropriation for the Antioch plant was eliminated by Congress at the time the annual appropriation for the project was approved this spring.

Olson filled three vacancies during the week. He appointed P. J. McLaughlin of Salinas as a member of the state board of prison directors, replacing the late Chris Merchant who was killed in an automobile accident, and Edward M. Pencevich of San Francisco to the state athletic commission, replacing Archie M. Closson of Lodi, whose term expired.

"Love" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon Sunday.

The Golden Text will be: "The Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty; he will save, he will rejoice over thee with joy; he will rest in his love, he will joy over thee with singing." (Zeph. 3: 17.) Other Bible citations will include: "And he said unto his disciples, Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat; neither for your body, what ye shall put on. Consider the ravens; for they neither sow nor reap; which neither have storehouse nor barn; and God feedeth them; how much more are ye better than the fowls?" (Luke 12: 22, 24).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The 'divine ear' is not an auditory nerve. It is the all-hearing and all-knowing Mind to whom each need of man is always known and by whom it will be supplied. In divine Science, man is sustained by God, the divine Principle of being. The earth, at God's command, brings forth the food for man's use" (pp. 7, 530.)

Leslie Santinelli, trainee at the camp at San Louis O'bispo spent the week end with his mother and family in Nevada City.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

REFORM

Charles Fox said that restorations were the most bloody of all revolutions; and he might have added that reformations are the best mode of preventing the necessity of either. —Colton.

Every reform, however necessary, will by weak minds be carried to an excess which will itself need reforming—Coleridge.

This is a period of doubt, speculation, selfishness; of divided interests, marvelous good, and mysterious evil. But sin can only work out its own destruction; and reform does and must push on the growth of mankind.—Mary Baker Eddy.

He who reforms himself, has done more toward reforming the public, than a crowd of noisy, important patriots.—Lavater.

How important, often, is the pain of guilt, as a stimulant to amendment and reformation.

All reform except a moral one will prove unavailing.—Carylle.

'THE PENALTY' SCREEN FEATURE SATURDAY

Acting in pictures with youngsters is one of the most stimulating experiences an older actor can have in Hollywood. So declares Lionel Barrymore.

"There's something about the psychology of it," the veteran star declares. "Maybe it's the unconscious matter of keeping up with their youthful psychology. Anyway, I always look forward to it."

Barrymore's remark is apropos of working with Gene Reynolds, youthful actor of "Edison, The Man." "Gallant Sons," "Boys Town" and other hits who plays his most important role to date with Barrymore and Edward Arnold in "The Penalty," coming Saturday to the Nevada Theatre.

"Gene", says Barrymore, "is one of the most interesting young fellows as compared to children of 40 years or so ago."

Barrymore and Reynolds play many whimsical scenes and some dramatic episodes together in "The Penalty," story of the regeneration of a child of the underworld on a "Down East" farm. Edward Arnold plays the boy's gangster father and Barrymore the old

TRAFFIC DEATHS FOR SIX MONTHS NUMBER 1,526

SACRAMENTO, July 31. — The Department of Motor Vehicles today announced traffic deaths for the first six months of 1941 totaled 1,526.

This is an increase of 256 or 20 per cent, over the figures for the first half of 1940.

Unless there is a marked change for the better, department authorities said, the record for the last six months of this year will be considerably worse inasmuch as accidents usually are extremely heavy during the vacation months of July and August and in the late fall months.

June totals show 99 killed in cities of California during the month and 166 in rural districts, a total of 265.

The record number of traffic deaths for the state, 3,139 in all, occurred in 1937. Department officials said that the present rate, the 1941 figure probably would be well above that amount.

Is Your Lawn Diseased?

SOD WEBWORM: The Sod Webworm (larvae of the Lawn Moth) has become a serious pest of lawns during recent years. The worms feed at the base of the grass and cause large brownish or grayish patches in otherwise beautiful lawns. Injury (which is often confused with Brown Patch Disease) may spread over the entire lawn, or may be confined to a few scattered portions of the lawn.

The simplest successful treatment of lawns for the control of Sod Webworm has been made with EXTRAX Garden Spray, used at 1 to 800 dilution (one bottle capful to a gallon of water). Apply with a sprinkling can or water proportioner at the rate of one gallon to each square yard (3'x3') of lawn area. Thoroughly soak lawn an hour before applying "EXTRAX."

The contest is being conducted to find the girl, who, in costume and personality, best typifies the spirit of the Old West.

The contest is open to any single girl between the ages of 16 and 25 years, who has resided in one of the Western States for five years prior to July 1, 1941. Contestants will be required to appear in costume in the period between 1948 and 1880, before the judges at the California State Fair in Sacramento on Sunday, August 31st. The first prize is $200 and there are many other valuable awards. The winners will be given radio auditions. Entries close August 15th.

did believe in the Bible maxim that a man shall earn his bread by the sweat of his brow, have been appeased. They have found they do not have to work. The government has appeased by reaching its hands into the pockets of the thrifty and giving money to the thriftless. Thrift used to be a common word in everyday conversation, in letters and stories. Banks used it to encourage savings depositors. One rarely sees the word now and least of all does one see it in the outpouring of printed matter from government bureaux.

The worst elements of the nation have been appeased until they fancy themselves in control of the nations' destiny. The Willie Bioffs, the Harry Bridges, and half a hundred lesser scoundrels in the sacred name of labor covertly gnaw at the foundations of our democracy. But the country's press has never been appeased. It is attacked and abused along with the country's creative and industrial genius. In an attempt to offset its almost universal scorn of palliative and corrupting legislation, a slush fund of $100,000,000 for government propaganda has been created. But the press balks and throws the stuff into the yawning wastebaskets. We do know that the government with this fund buys time on the air, and by that much the broadcasters become suspect. When and if the press sells out, that will be the end. The end may not be a fascist or communist state, but it will smell as bad.
